

CAST Software

CAST is the world leader and pioneer in Application Intelligence software, providing the metrics and information IT executives must have to measure, control and improve the technical quality of business applications and the performance of development teams.

CAST's robust technology – the Application Intelligence Platform – can assess the most complex of business applications in a holistic manner, and from its design to its execution.

Access to continual, automated assessment can help you ensure that quality is built into your systems with every developer contribution – whether you are building from scratch or enhancing legacy applications.

Whether struggling with a problematic application that's inhibiting the business, or looking for ways to improve your organizational agility, application assessment automation is a valuable tool to improve your systems baseline and continuously upgrade your organization's performance.
